My name is Rigoberto Delgado Zavala I am a Psychologist by profession and I am a person with a disability (quadriplegia). I have nine years experience in teaching Spanish classes. I started empirically, in a Spanish program organized by PROJIMO, a program of community-based rehabilitation. Volunteers come from different parts of the world and to communicate many need to learn the Spanish language, although some of already spoke a little.

Teaching people from different Spanish countries was for me a challenge and a great experience, in which I too learned a lot. So as part of the Spanish course, I propose an interchange to culturally share uses and customs of Mexican families, and to talk as friends on different topics in Spanish, as well as to practice translation relevant to different professions or interests, as requested.

The materials for practice are:

And dictionaries, or the Internet, for word reference.

Classes are intended to be 2 hours per week, so the course can be 2 months, which would include 16 sessions of 1 hour, with a cost of $240 US dollars for two months.

Also for anyone interested in taking classes independently, the cost would be $16 for each hour. You can pay by PayPal.
